There's nothing better than an ice cream cone on a hot summer day! Kelli Sweeney will attest to that! She was one of the playgrounders who rolled on over from the town hall to Tootsie's on Friday morning. Approximately 250 kids participate in The Recreation Dept. program on a daily basis.

50 acres in North Wilmington still in limbo

by Jeff Nazzaro

The approximately 50-acre parcel of land belonging to Robert Corey and located on Ainsworth Road in a odd-shaped pocket between Andover Street, Route 125 and Interstate 93 in Wilmington has a bumpy and uncertain future to go along with its long and dubious past.

As discussions over the property top the 40-year mark, it remains to be seen if and how the parcel will be used and how those using it will get to it.

Access has long been a problem and June 12, Corey asked selectmen to support efforts to secure access from Route 125 to the parcel. Selectmen said at that meeting that they wanted a clear indication as to how that parcel was to be used and suggested that representatives of Corey meet with the planning board.

Tuesday night, civil/environmental engineer Paul Lindholm and Ned Lawson, an environmental and land use lawyer both representing Corey, met with planning officials - minus board Chairman Dick Longo and Planning Director Lynn Duncan - to discuss uses for, and access to, the land.

With the matter due back in the lap of the board of selectmen Aug. 21, what came out of the meeting was not a lot. Acting chairman Carole Hamilton, with support from members Austin Rounds and Michael Roache, decided to send the following message back to selectmen: give no support to a Route 125 access without first benefit of a public hearing on the property.

And, prior to a public hearing, Hamilton said she would like to see how access from Route 125 would be gained and proof from the DEP that the state environmental organization supports the access route. Oh, and she would also like to see the "grandfathering issue" addressed.

Hamilton indicated that the grandfathering issue was central to the parcel's future in the mind of Duncan.

Two years ago, after the planning board denied acceptance of subdivision plans for the Corey property - then zoned General Industrial - Annual Town Meeting voted, via petitioned article, to rezone the land to Residential-60. But in the meantime, a Middlesex Superior Court judge ruled that the planning board acted erroneously in not approving the industrial subdivision. Because of the court ruling, the industrial zoning is grandfathered against the town meeting vote for eight years from the time of subdivision approval.

So while the town will still likely contest the grandfathering, Corey is seeking alternate access to the property for an industrial subdivision. The access, proposed from Route 125, would be aimed at heading off public dissent against using Ainsworth Road as a connection between residential neighborhoods and any industrial development on the property.

Tuesday, Lawson outlined three possible uses for the property:

- Develop industrially and use Ainsworth Road for access. Both town officials and residents strenuously oppose such a situation.
- Develop residentially and use Ainsworth Road for access. This would go over better with the town and residents, but Lawson indicated that given the parcel's location, this is the least desirable scenario for Corey.
- Develop part industrially, part residentially, with an alternate route from 125 as access to the industrial portion, and Ainsworth Road for access to the residential section. This is what Corey is aiming for. However, the 125 access still looms. Rounds said he supported this plan, but Roache, in asking what the potential for residential development was in the portion set aside for that - mostly wetlands - received the answer "not much" from Lindholm.

"Not much" seems to be the key answer here, as in to the question, "What's happened with the Corey property in the last 40 years?"

Armed robbery

by Jeff Nazzaro

An armed bandit struck the Forest Mobil Station on Lowell Street Saturday night, making off with what police estimated to be about $260 in cash.

According to Wilmington Deputy Police Chief Bernard Nally, a 28-32-year-old white male entered the station's office at around 9:20 and asked the lone attendant on duty in a friendly, conversational manner for change for a dollar. When the attendant could not produce change for the dollar with coins from his pocket, he opened the register.

At that point, according to Nally, the suspect, described as six-feet tall and slim (around 165 pounds) with long, dark brown hair, a scruffy beard and wearing two gold chains, stuck a semi-automatic handgun in the attendant's ribs and demanded he turn over all the money in the register.

After collecting the cash, the suspect then told the attendant to get down on the ground, and, before fleeing, ripped the station's telephone out of the wall.

The robber, with the approximate

$260 in hand, then ran to what was described as an older model Chevrolet Monte Carlo-style vehicle and took off toward Interstate 93, according to Nally, who added that police reports were not conclusive as to whether the perpetrator acted alone or had a driver waiting.

Nally said the attendant first contacted a station employee who lives nearby and then called police.

Nally also confirmed that Wilmington Police are checking with police in Lowell to see if the same man who hit the Forest Mobil station may have struck a Shell gas station on Bridge Street in Lowell Sunday night at around 7. The man responsible for the Lowell robbery reportedly also used a gun and his description appeared similar to that of the suspect in the Wilmington heist.

"We're checking it," Nally said, but could add no more details into the investigation.

Any information on the suspect or the robbery should be forwarded to Inspector Michael Celata, of the Wilmington Police Department Detectives Bureau, at 657-8082.

Suspect: White Male, around 28-32 years old, about 6' tall, approx. 165 lbs. - Slim Build. Long of Dark Brown Hair, unkempt, Scruffy, Beard Two GOLD chains on neck. Car: Driving an Older Monte Carlo style Vehicle, possibly Dark Grey in color.

Town joins task force

by Jeff Nazzaro

Wilmington Selectmen Chairman Diane Allan and Town Manager Michael Caira will join 11 North Reading residents on a task force appointed by that town's board of selectmen to search for uses for the now closed J.T. Berry Rehabilitation Center, which is located on Route 62 on the North Reading-Wilmington town line.

The task force will hold its first meeting Thursday night (July 13) at 7:30 at the North Reading Town Hall. Caira said this initial gathering would likely serve organizational purposes: setting a regular meeting time, electing a chairperson, perhaps setting goals.

The J.T. Berry Task Force, as North Reading selectmen have dubbed the group, was formed by selectmen in North Reading on the heels of reports that both the Department of Corrections and the Department of Youth Services were seeking to use the state-owned Berry property for prisons - the DOC for a minimum security women's facility and the DYS for a secure juvenile prison.

The Berry Center was run by the state Department of Mental Health as a facility to care for mentally retarded citizens before closing earlier this year after a phasing out process. Now the Department of Capital Planning and Operations is charged with finding a new use, and the task force will work to have a say in any decision.

A small portion of the Berry property lies in Wilmington with the entire parcel in close proximity to North Wilmington residential neighborhoods around Hathaway Road and Park Street.

Because of the parcel's situation on the shared border, North Reading selectmen decided to include two representatives from Wilmington on the task force.

"It's good that Wilmington will have some input into it," Allan said Monday night.

At last month's Wilmington selectmen's meeting, Allan volunteered to fill one of the spots and indicated that she felt the town manager should also be involved. Caira accepted and there were no objections from the remainder of the board to either appointment.

Selectman Dan Wandell, meanwhile, volunteered to serve as an alternate member of the task force, filling in if either Allan or Caira were unable to attend any of the group's meetings.

For his part, Caira believes the state should engage in discussions with the task force before making any decisions on the property. He also has some ideas as to how the directions of those discussions should go.

"I think the property should be looked at in a comprehensive fashion and not piecemealed," he said, in response to reports that the property may be divided up for various state and even municipal uses.

Caira said the task force has to consider, among other concerns, traffic, environmental and residential questions.

"I personally would welcome some type of commercial development," he said, emphasizing that any use of the property would have a direct affect on the Town of Wilmington and in particular residents of the northern part of the community.

"I think anything that goes in there is going to affect the town," Caira said. "We need to be very concerned about what goes in there."

Strings swing into action

by Jeff Nazzaro

Faster than you can say Stravinsky, it seems, the Strings Attached Parent Support group, or SAPS, if you please, has organized and is up and running to raise money for conductor/director Ward Dilmore's group of approximately 200 string musicians in the Wilmington school system.

The SAPS goal is to raise $25,000 for use toward phases two and three of Dilmore's British-American Project for his Strings Attached students - an exchange with student musicians from Holmfirth, England. British students are set to arrive in the states in October of this year, while Wilmington's students embark for England in April of 1996.

"We're really going to use this as a 'let's get these kids to England' vehicle," said Karen Swartwout, who is chairing SAPS along with fellow Strings parent Joanne Gustin. Both women have daughters in the program and Swartwout indicated that the group would continue to operate even after the England trip.

But with phases two and three (and England) looming, the idea behind SAPS was formed as Strings Attached was wowing judges and audience members alike during Phase One - a trip to Lake George, N.Y. for history, music and fun culminating in a judged concert in which the young Wilmington musicians received the highest possible rating.

Now, just a month after bowing their way to some well-deserved bows, the violinists, cellists, violists and bassists have support rivaling any symphony rhythm section - SAPS.

On July 1, Swartwout opened an account for SAPS at Wilmington Redemption Center. In an on-going campaign, deposits from any bottles or cans brought to the center can be donated to the group simply by saying the word.

The word was out when the group held its first formal meeting a couple of weeks ago. At that time, 17 members attended.

"We were quite excited," Swartwout said. "We didn't know what to expect."

With their next meeting scheduled for Aug. 23 at 7:00 p.m. at the Congregational Church, what they're expecting now is simple: even more members. But what they are isn't quite so easy: they're busy.

Along with the bottle and can drive, SAPS has a number of fund-raisers in the works for the remainder of the year, beginning Wednesday, when they were to assume refreshment duties for Wilmington's Concerts on the Common, a job generously handed over by the Wilmington Kiwanis Club.

On July 22, from 10-4 at the Masonic Temple on Route 62, Strings Attached musicians will trade in their cellos and violas for buckets and hoses, as they hold their first of three car washes. The others are set for dates in August and September and all will be accompanied by the sale of baked goods.

In September, SAPS will put on a raffle for a violin and case donated by the Wilmington Music Center and in December they will hold a fund-raising auction at the Villanova Hall.

It's still a long way to England, though.

Anyone interested in helping or joining SAPS can call Karen Swartwout at 657-5169 or Joanne Gustin at 658-4657.

Do you recognize the man wearing a necktie on Wilmington's Town Common of July 3rd? The only man wearing a necktie on Wilmington's Town Common on July 3rd is Dave Boeri. Dave, a Wilmington native, stopped in to the Kiwanis tent to say "Hi" to his sister, Karen on her birthday. Here he is chatting with Ann Rich. In case you don't recognize him, watch Channel 5 news you'll see him there.

Wilmington's American-LaFrance returned to rightful owner

How many Wilmington residents of today remember the old American-LaFrance fire engine, of the old Wilmington Fire Department?

It was bought in 1927, and was kept in the fire station on Church Street for many years. Somehow, when persons were talking and relating stories about fires that truck had a particular place in the vocabulary of Wilmington firebugs.

It just have an engine number. It was always the "American - LaFrance." Bought in 1927, it was finally traded out of town in 1958, by the office of Fred F. Cain.

Cain sold it to Georgetown, where it performed its duties for another 10 years.

On June 3, 1968 Killian Brady, living in Lynn, bought the apparatus at a public auction in Georgetown.

Brady held on to his new possession for less than two months.

On July 21, 1968 Brady drove it to an antique car meet on the grounds of Tewksbury State Hospital. While driving it home the antique truck developed engine trouble. Brady pulled it over to the side of the road, and decided to walk to a garage for help. He just did not dream that anything would happen to something as big and as red as an antique fire engine.

Brady was wrong. When he returned a few hours later the American-LaFrance was gone - missing. It had vanished, one could say, into thin air.

Brady spent the next quarter of a century searching for his stolen antique. But he didn't lay eyes on it until June of 1993, when he attended a firemen's muster in Wakefield. That was an event which traditionally attracts antique fire trucks, on display.

An acquaintance of Brady came up to him. "Hey, Killian, have you seen your American-LaFrance?"

The acquaintance pointed to a specific fire engine, Brady went over for a look.

Brady recognized the fire truck immediately. "It was like meeting an old friend again - I can't explain the feeling I had. It was such a rush," he recalled.

"Even the odometer reading was the same as when I saw it last - stuck at 28,603."

Although the fire engine had been beautifully restored since Brady had last seen it, the odometer hadn't been repaired because it couldn't be fixed, Brady explained.

It turned out, Brady said, that the truck had been owned since 1982 by a call firefighter/fire engine buff, in a nearby town.

"He didn't steal it but he bought it as stolen property", and he knew it Brady believes.

This is indicated by the fact that the "owner" had registered the fire engine as a 1925 American-LaFrance with the Registry of Motor Vehicles, to conceal the fact that it was stolen, even though "he told the world" it was a 1927 model.

Brady had never met the man until the day of the muster. Still in shock from the enormity of his discovery, Brady attempted to talk with the man. When he introduced himself the fellow responded "Yeah, I know who you are, Killian."

That was two years ago. Since that time Brady has spent time in the hospital during 1993 and he did not pursue the matter for two months.

But when he was feeling better Brady went through his files and found the title to the fire engine, the original bill of sale, and old pictures of his children playing on the fire engine - all proof that Brady was the rightful owner.

Brady was fully prepared to start legal proceedings to recover his property, but the situation resolved itself when the owner died in his sleep. That was last January. The man left no will.

Brady was able to recover the engine through the man's estate.

"I would never have gone all the way to get it back, if he hadn't died when he did."

"But I would have forced him into court to find out how he came by that fire engine."

Brady, who now lives in North Reading, is a long time automotive antique buff and expert. Over the years he has owned many antique automobiles and trucks.

But nothing, to him compares to May 5, the day he recovered his beloved fire engine, and it came home to stay.

"The big thing was the day of finding it. But even better than that was the day I brought it home. I felt like I wanted to sleep in it. It's still like a dream come true. It hasn't worn off yet."

The only sad part of the story is that due to a serious injury he suffered years ago, as a Lynn firefighter, he is now unable to drive his treasured antique. For now it is enough for him to sit up in front while his son, Jim, a North Reading Fire Captain, pilots it around town.

Don't expect that to last forever, because Killian is a tenacious and determined fighter.

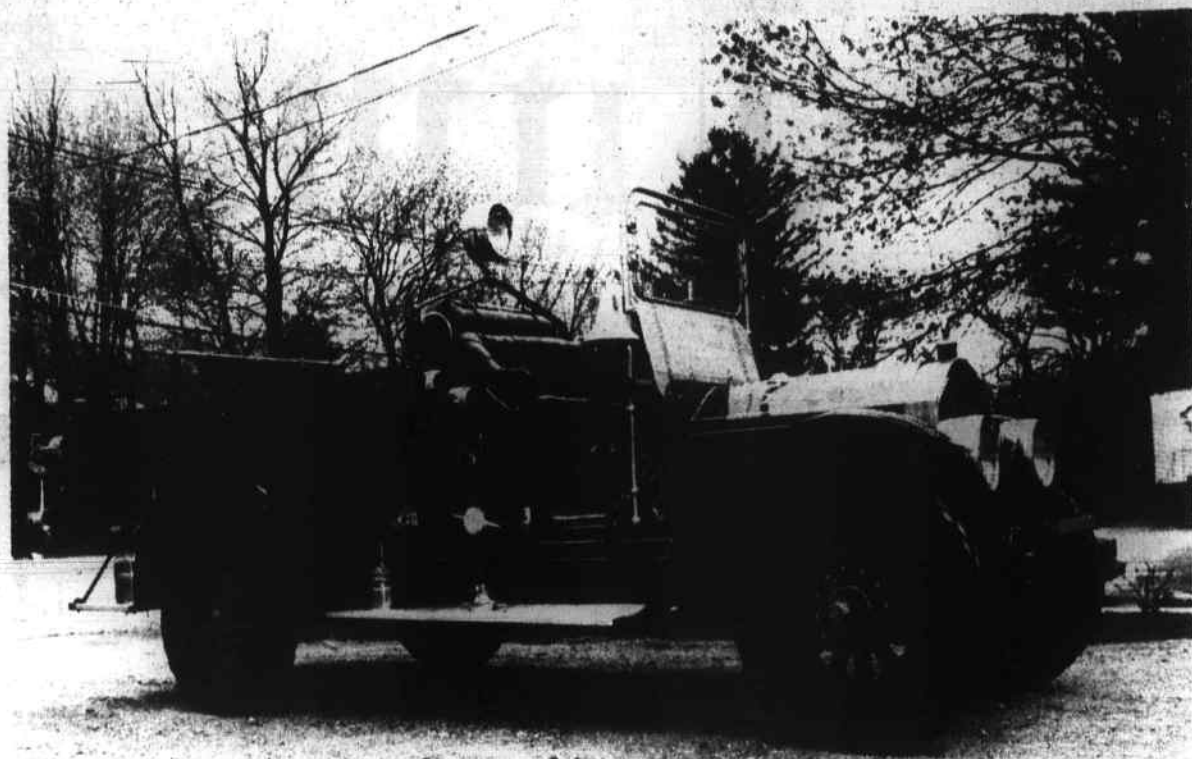

Anyone who is capable of battling back from a near crippling injury and of proving his rightful ownership of a fire truck stolen three decades in the past is a force with which one should reckon.

"I am going to drive it down the street some day!" he vows.

This story by Bob Turosz appeared in the July 6, 1995 North Reading Transcript and was adapted for Wilmington readers

BRADY BUNCH. Killian Brady's sons, Jim, (age 4), and Shawn, (7), are shown on the rear of their father's 1927 American LaFrance just days before the fire engine was stolen in Tewksbury in 1968.

FULLY RESTORED to its former glory, Killian Brady's 1927 American LaFrance can now be seen touring around North Reading on beautiful summer days.

VACATION HOME OR TAX SHELTER?

Now, as you're lazing around your vacation home, is a good time to consider: should you enjoy it as long as you love it, or play by the rules and earn tax shelter deductions? It depends as much on your income as your preference.

Basic rule: If it's a vacation home, you can deduct local taxes on the house and interest on the mortgage, and you can spend as much time there as you want. You can rent it out up to 14 days and never even declare the income, let alone pay taxes on it.

If it's a tax shelter, you get more deductions and less enjoyment. You get to deduct taxes and interest PLUS depreciation, maintenance, fix-ups and all. You must declare rental income from the property, but if your income is under $100,000, you may get to write off as much as $25,000 of rental loss per year. (Losses are phased out as income reaches toward $150,000.) New rules limit write-offs if rentals are seven days or less.

What's right for you? Talk it over with the tax professionals at Joyce K. Brisbois, C.P.A.

Just living here brings some responsibility

by Bill Conlon

By definition, a "community" is a collection of individuals working toward a common purpose.

In this age of fractured loyalties, fervent nationalism and nations being torn apart over issues as seemingly minor as ethnicity and language, there is a danger of the community disappearing. No longer are people working for a common goal. It's "me first" everywhere, around the world.

Even in Tewksbury, there is a danger to the sense of community. People are putting their own interests first, and to hell with everyone else.

Take trash.

Condo owners want the town to pick up their trash. They're paying their taxes, they argue, but they're not getting the service. The town manager is reeling at the thought of having to spend an additional $250,000 or more on trash costs, which might mean layoffs, cutbacks in other services, and a higher tax rate for everyone, at the very least.

The same could be said of public schools. People without children are paying the same taxes as those whose children attend the schools. Is it fair for childless couples to subsidize the cost of educating someone else's kids?

Where does it end? It doesn't. The sewer system is paid out of general tax revenues. Those without sewers are paying for those who have the service. Is that fair?

In a manner of speaking, yes it is.

Everyone who lives in Tewksbury is part of Tewksbury. The town is an entity, and every resident is a part of that entity, sharing in the good times and the bad, but all work toward the continued existence of the entity we call the town of Tewksbury.

Everyone pays taxes, and those taxes keep the town running. It would be impossible, or staggeringly difficult at best, to offer each resident an à la carte package of services based solely upon which services they pay for. Most services provided by the town must be lumped together, and paid for from the common pool, or the entire system breaks down under a "pay as you go" program of epic complexity.

For example, if your Hyundai uses less gas than someone's Caddy across town, you're not paying as much in gas taxes, so you don't deserve to have your street paved as often. Or would it be more equitable if every bridge in the state had a tollbooth? If you rely on a well, and not town water, should the fire department be obligated to use town water from the hydrant to put out the fire in your garage? Now, would that be fair? And if you moved into town recently, what on Earth gives you the right to use traffic lights, streets, schools and sewer lines that were built years ago with somebody else's tax money? You didn't pay for that!

Individual needs must be subsumed to the needs of the community, or the community itself might not survive.

The Mosquito connection

by Stu Neilson

The folks at the Central Massachusetts Mosquito Control Project have been busy. They have been doing spraying from the streets around Wilmington and Tewksbury. One day has gone by and another is due tomorrow. Anyone wishing to have their property skipped can call their town clerk or the folks at Central Mass Mosquito at 508-393-3055. Additional dates are going to be July 20 and July 27.

On the other hand by the time this taste of rain we got on Tuesday gets around to hatching any mosquitoes in those man made breeding pools (tires, bird baths, empty cans, anything that holds water) you'll be calling the nice folks at CMMCP to have them come out and spray the little dickens.

The good news is they will! They will come out and survey your property to determine if it would be beneficial and if it is they will make the arrangements. They spray after dusk, just as the mosquito-fest begins, so the bees have a chance to go home from work first.

One home owner whose property was treated commented on the politeness, thoroughness and caution taken by the technician. Call the CMMCP for further information or tips on ridding your property of those little pests yourself: 508-393-3055.

Site plans: a public process

by Jeff Nazzaro

The Wilmington Planning Board served notice Tuesday night that it will honor the full scope of town By-law changes regarding Site Plan Review made at April's Annual Town Meeting under Article 26, but in particular, the following subsection:

"The Planning Board shall hold a public hearing on any complete site plan review application within thirty (30) days of its submission."

For Tuesday's meeting, the board was in receipt of four separate requests to waive the public hearing process for site plan reviews. Two of those were put on the agenda and voted on, while two did not meet the board's Thursday deadline for inclusion. Of the two the board voted on, it was a split decision, but the vote in favor of canceling the public hearing was only because the same plans were up for public debate with the board of appeals. The vote against waiving the hearing was quick and unanimous and each of the three members present offered support for the By-law change in voting against the request.

With a meeting absentee list sporting the names of Chairman Dick Longo, board member Jim Diorio and Planning Director Lynn Duncan (about par for the course for any town meeting in the middle of July) member Carole Hamilton took the chair and led colleagues Austin Rounds and Michael Roache in solidifying a stance against granting public hearing waivers just for the sake of a request to do so.

Hamilton, in leading the discussion, indicated that she felt the board would be receiving "a flurry of letters stating that since changes [to the site plan] are minimal, there is no need for a public hearing." Hamilton expressed concern for this attitude, and stated that she would "prefer to err on being conservative and keep the public hearings" to preserve the By-law change's intent: the solicitation of public comment on any site plans in the town. And Hamilton did not need to persuade the other members.

"I think the town meeting vote to make this a public process was just that," Roache said, adding that the new changes to the site plan review process were in a "feeling out process.... I'd like to see what's out there as far as public reaction," he concluded.

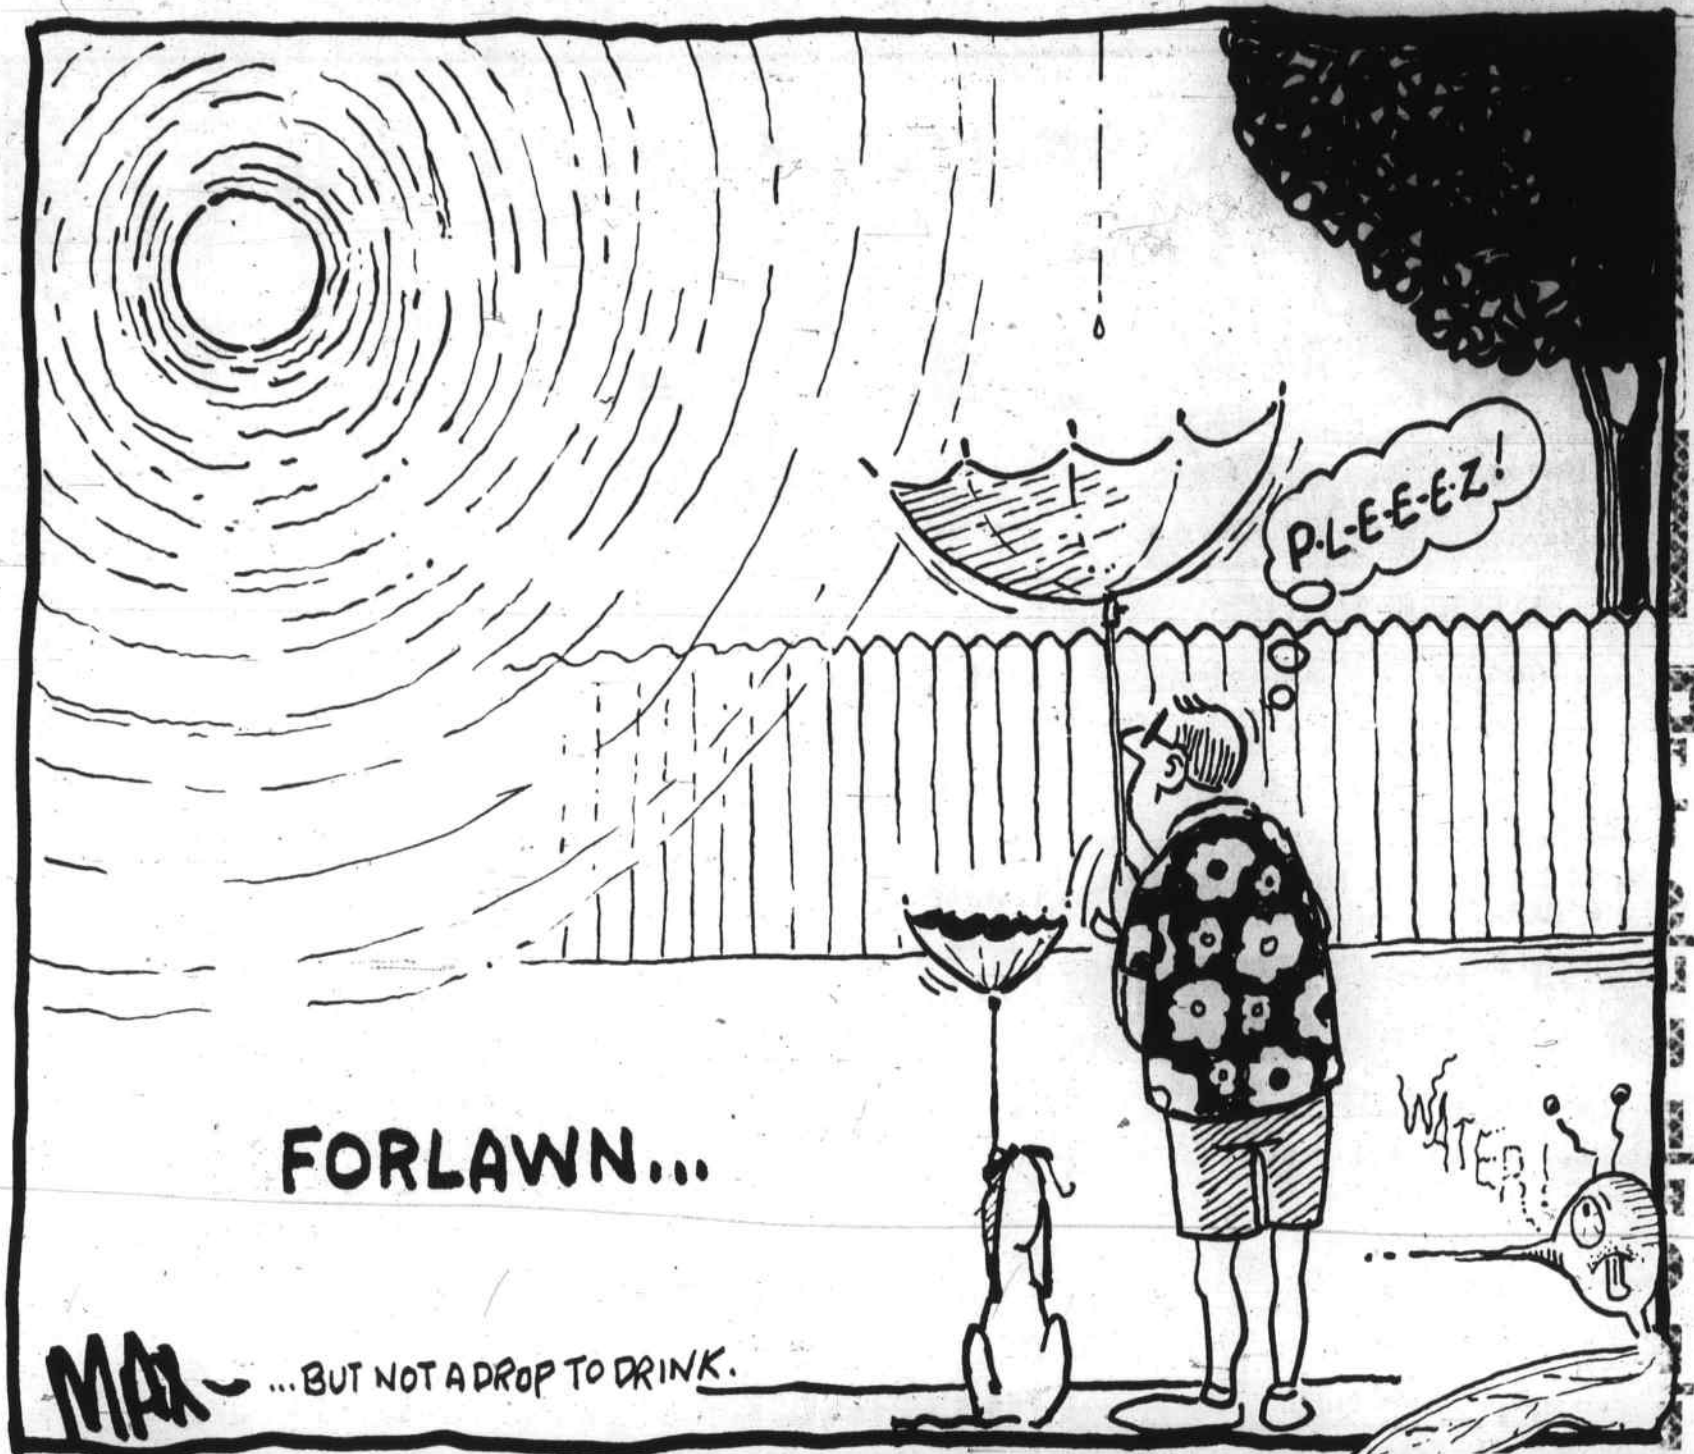

Austin Rounds was in agreement, feeling also that the change to a public process should be given its day in court.

"It's really kind of early to start to waive things," Rounds said.

The board is required to provide waivers for any part of the regulations and used that wisely in not subjecting the one applicant to public hearings with both the planning board and the board of appeals.

Subsection 2 of Section 6.5.4 of the By-law states that the planning board shall "include provisions for waivers for any portion of the regulations, including filing fees, in such cases where, in the opinion of the Planning Board, strict conformity would pose an unnecessary hardship to the applicant and provided such waiver would not be contrary to the intent of the regulations."

The intent is clear: to make site plan review a public process. And Hamilton and the planning board were right on target in sending a clear message that they will uphold that intent.

Letters to the editor

What happened to "We the people?"

Dear Larz:

Does anyone have an answer as to how a vote at town meeting by the people of Wilmington can be turned down by the Attorney General because he received a letter from the Planning Board? What ever happened to two sides to every story? How can a hand full of people upset so many families? How can a hand full of people overthrow a vote of 142 for 43 opposed? I am referring to Mr. Williams' Article #44 at town meeting April 22, 1995.

Wake up Wilmington, you wonder why the meetings in town have low turnouts. Why go? Why spend an entire day to go home feeling good that you won only to find out weeks later you are not on the winning side even when the townspeople voted it in!

I take my privilege to vote very seriously and I am disturbed with this outcome.

Imagine a politician going to bed a winner by the number of votes only to find out weeks later he or she was disapproved by someone!

What ever happened to what "We the People" have to say?

Nancy Steen

Five fantastic days!

Dear Larz:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank a very special group in our town.

For five fantastic days, the residents of Wilmington and neighboring towns (I'm sure) spent most of their evenings and a few mornings and afternoons together.

This could not have been possible if not for the work of, the Wilmington Fourth of July Committee.

My family and I have attended this celebration since its early years and we just can't believe how these people make it bigger and better each year. Special thanks to Chairman Jim Stewart and the favorite "Good Guy" in our family, Tom Pazyra.

Great job!

Steve Komenchuk & Family

Remarkable Fourth!

Dear Larz:

Kudos to Wilmington and its residents for the remarkable Fourth! Everything was just right - carnival - food - fireworks. The people were so considerate and orderly. The gendarmes on their bikes were great to behold!

Some team there, Mike Cairn! Now - if only there were more sanitary facilities. To run from the social center to the high school with a six year old through that crowd and then wait in line - was some feat!

Maybe next year? I love that town!!

Nancy Clark

A large parking lot would be disastrous

Dear Larz:

In light of the recent press that the Route 62 Center project has been getting, I would like to voice my opinion on the situation.

There are some elected officials who represent the Town of Wilmington who are in favor of a project that includes a parking lot that would accommodate 300 to 400 parking spaces to be located in Wilmington Center. I feel that this is ludicrous especially after all the talk about a center renovation project that would encourage new businesses to locate themselves here. What would we tell these potential new business owners? We have plenty of parking for you, but sorry, no place for your business?

Another thing that is crazy about this parking facility is the outpouring of all the cars onto Route 38 which is already too busy and dangerous. It has been stated that when Sweetheart Plastics was in operation, Route 38 handled the traffic. Well, when Sweetheart Plastics was in operation, there were three separate entrances and exits in which cars could enter the main street. To take that further, Sweetheart Plastics was revenue for Wilmington so, people could at least justify toleration of the traffic problem.

With all of these 300 to 400 parking spaces, these cars would be pouring onto Route 38 at peak times. If you think that there is a traffic problem now, just wait.

It has also been said that there would be a widening of Route 38 and the bridge. Wonderful. What happens to the traffic where there is no other lane, when the extra lane merges into the rest of the road. The four way intersection is a deathtrap as it is, we don't need any more traffic there now. We should work on a way to reduce or reroute it.

On another note, if we had all those extra parking spots for the train, we would be encouraging other communities to come to Wilmington to park their cars. I have observed in the Police Log, of this paper, that most arrests are made to non-residents of Wilmington. I believe we are asking for trouble.

In summary, this proposed parking lot would be an eyesore, no matter how many shrubs and trees we plant. All you would see would be asphalt in the Center. We would be discouraging businesses to come to the Center because there would be no place to do business, because the parking lot would take all the space. We would be encouraging transients who would normally not come to Wilmington, to come here.

Regarding the Wilmington Center Project, in my opinion, we are going about it all wrong. It is clear that we need to do something with the center, but you cannot move this here, widen a lane there, open a parking lot over here and viola! We have a new center. One of the first laws of physics that I learned in high school is that two things cannot take up the same place at the same time. In the center, there is simply not enough room to do much more than is already there.

I think that we should look at moving the town center somewhere else in town. Perhaps we could look at relocating Rotary Park where the Little League plays ball. We could make a bigger and better park for them elsewhere. I'm sure that there are a few acres of excess town owned land or a couple of lots of land to be bought. Rotary Park is located very near to the existing center, the police and fire departments are right there and there would be plenty of room for parking. We could construct a two story strip mall length structure (offering first choice of spots to existing center businesses), putting parking spots all around the building. We have enough leeway of sidewalks and streets to accommodate the increased flow of traffic turning into the new "Center." I don't believe that this is a solution, just a suggestion.

In closing, I think that we should stop looking at traffic studies and trying to renovate the existing town center. After 30 years of all of these "studies," we should come to grips that nothing can be done in such a small space. But most of all, a very large parking lot for such a small town would be disastrous for everyone.

Regards,
Danielle M. McCoy

Nineteen residents of Nichols Street, meeting at the home of Nicholas DeFelice, Jr. decided to visit the Board of Selectmen at its next meeting to discuss the possibility of having sidewalks, or a sidewalk installed on their street.

Harry Huntley, for many years a resident of Wilmington, retired and moved to Florida. He was pictured being honored as a visiting Rotarian by local President Ralph Allen. Harry was club president in 1954.

Tim Kelley of Shawshen Avenue returned to Alameda, Calif aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea following a month's deployment in the western Pacific.

Newly appointed recreation director Ken Zucker was pictured at the Boutwell Street School with some of the participants in the pet show held there earlier.

According to Nosey Nancy, SP4 Everett Stanley of Marion Street arrived home from Vietnam.

Also according to Nosey Nancy, while she was dining at No. Wilmington Pharmacy on a Wednesday, John Elia pulled up in his dune buggy and took her for a ride around the parking lot and she enjoyed every minute of it - even threatened to take up driving.

Kathleen Johnson of Holt Street graduated from New England Baptist Hospital School of Nursing.

Wilmington Library notes

Vacation time

July is a heavy vacation month and it effects the library in many ways. The reading program signups now number over 700 eager participants and children are still coming in to add their names to a "Cricket Country" or the caterpillar board and to receive a free reading kit.

Weekly notes

Some staff members are back from vacation and others are about to go. While Sarah Rueter is away in England and Egypt, Martha Stevenson, trustee chair and Eileen Broderick, children's services librarian, will be contributing to these library news notes. Christina Stewart, reference and adult services librarian will list some of the new and interesting books coming in daily. Look for a display being arranged of "staff favorites," books that staff members have particularly enjoyed reading, during the next few weeks.

Summer reading

Summer is a good time to catch up on some of those books you've meant to read, but not quite gotten around to yet. Leave the "new books" area and browse in the stacks for old time favorites and titles you may have overlooked. Maybe this is the year for War and Peace or the Seven Pillars of Wisdom. Or ask for our new list of books on tape and give your eyes a rest.

Cool and shady

The new picnic bench in the shady grove behind the parking lot beckons those who enjoy their reading out of doors in the summer. If the long, hot days of July continue as they have, the air-conditioned library can be a haven of respite and reading.

Bookends

Mark the date: Thursday evening, August 10 at 7 p.m. in the Conference Room. Barbara Berry will lead a discussion of Before and After by Rosellen Brown. The July meeting on Thurs., the 13th will feature Charms for the Easy Life in a discussion led by Mary Deislinger. Suggestions for future discussion titles will be welcomed at the July meeting. A list of titles for the year will be distributed and available in September.

DON'T OFFEND THE SELLERS
You have found the perfect house with everything you wanted - and then some - but the price is more than you want to pay. You decide to go for it anyway, and ask the agent to submit what Realtors call a "low ball" offer.
Low ball offers sometimes work. If the market is fluctuating and the sellers are anxious, they just may go for it. If the house is listed at a higher price than it should be, the sellers will probably be willing to negotiate. Most sellers are reasonable and open to offers, but they won't give their house away, especially if the asking price is in line with recent sales of similar homes.
What do you have to lose by making a low offer? If the seller yells and screams, the agent and not you, will be the focus of his wrath - and we don't take it personally. If you really want the house, however, a very low initial offer may irritate the seller to the point that he won't consider a better offer, if you decide to submit one. Design your strategy on the basis of how badly you want the house.
For professional advice on buying or selling real estate, please drop by our office in The Starwood Building at 299 Main Street, or call us at 657-8444.

All Around Travel Update

by Peggy Lee
President/Owner

SUMMER FARE WAR

Summer fare war is currently underway. For those of you who find travel a necessity rather than pleasure call now for the best prices you are likely to find this summer.

Well, the dog days of summer are surely upon us! We hope you are keeping cool and enjoying your vacations. If you haven't made any plans yet, don't forget the CARIBBEAN offers FANTASTIC SAVINGS during the summer months when people sort of forget the area completely. Best buys are even better for those of us who can pick up and travel, say to Aruba, with a two week notice. A family of four could travel to ARUBA for $599.00 and stay in a suite at the LACABANA! Aruba has great savings on food plans and all inclusions as well. Other islands are included as well. All prices are subject to availability so if you are interested call for more details.

Closer to home you will find that ATLANTIC CITY is becoming more and more popular and is easily accessible with a direct flight right into the city and reasonable hotel prices. There is a new Mega-Casino by Mirage Resorts scheduled for sometime in the near future which promises to increase the now very active area and perhaps give the Vegas Strip more competition.

Whatever the trip you may be planning ALL AROUND TRAVEL has the time and patience to help you find just what you are looking for. Our concern for our travelers is unsurpassed and our attention to details are just some of the ways we strive to make you feel special! We want you to keep coming back and tell your friends about us and it shows. Call us now at ALL AROUND TRAVEL, 508-658-2313 or 800-974-0106 and let us show you how much fun planning a trip can be.

HINT: Remember, when packing your suitcase travel light and keep all your important documents, medications, and valuables with you, not in your luggage. Also, never pack more than you can carry.

Stone's in the Garden

Attack of the Red Lily Beetles

by Jackie Leszczak-Stone

Everyone believes "it can't happen to me." Well it happened to me, last Thursday. During my daily weeding stroll I caught a glimpse of a bright red spot on a lily leaf. Closer examination revealed the spot to be a bright red beetle, about three eighths of an inch long, happily chewing on the lily. The beetle's body was more square than that of a lady beetle, and the head and thorax more distinct. Its antennae and legs were black. The curse of the Red Lily Beetle had arrived in my garden.

It took only a minute to find rows of slimy black grubs chewing through the leaves of a newly blossomed Asiatic lily, leaving only a skeleton behind. The grubs themselves are not actually slimy and black. They are light reddish brown with a small black head. However, they cover themselves in their own excrement and appear as dark droppings on chewed leaves. The grubs hatch from eggs laid on the underside of leaves. I soon found at least 10 leaves carrying jagged rows of five to 10 golden orange egg clusters.

The presence of this European import was first noted in Belmont in 1990. The actual source of the invasion is not known. They may have arrived in a shipment of lily bulbs or via the cut flower trade, but however they came - they are here, they fly and are spreading!

Gary Couch, entomologist at the University of Massachusetts Extension in Waltham, explained that a short life cycle is one reason this beetle is so successful. He explained some of the studies underway and offered several control options. (Gary also suffered some inauspicious news - my phone call marked the first Tewksbury area sighting of red lily beetle for his unofficial map. Not the kind of first that I wanted to hear.)

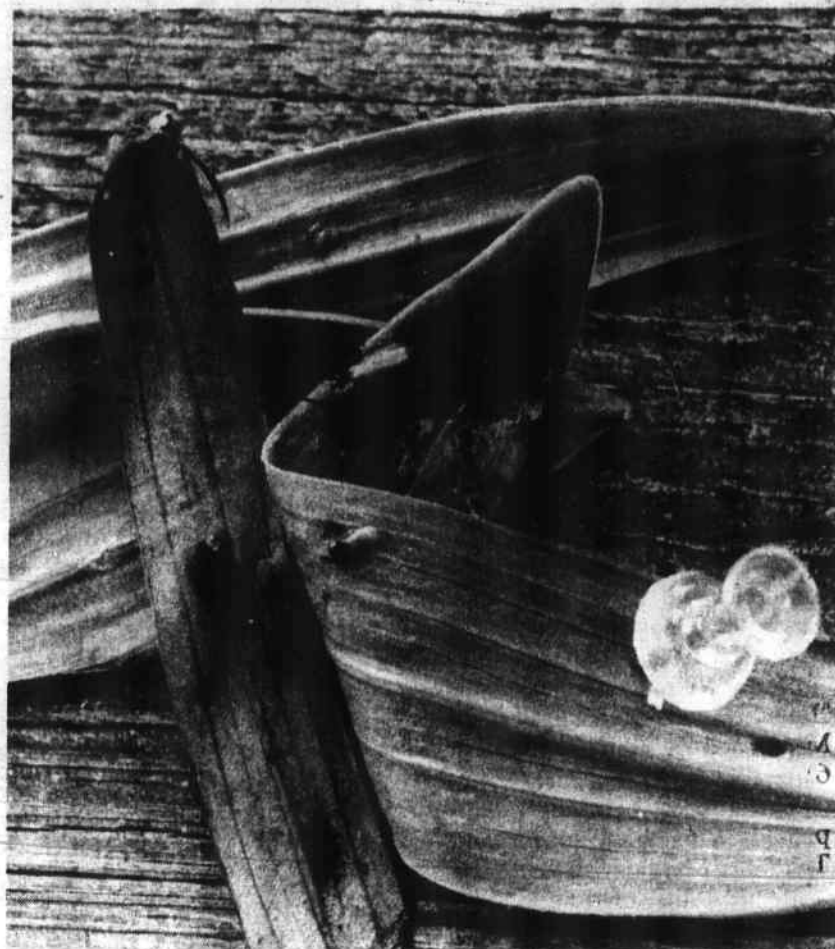

According to Mr. Couch the red adults winter over in the ground and begin feeding, mating and laying eggs as soon as lily bulbs produce leaves (March/April). The eggs hatch in three to five days, depending on the temperature. The grubs feed and grow for one to two weeks, then pupate (metamorphose) in the soil for about a week. The red lily beetle adults then emerge, ready to start all over again. A quick calculation suggests that their life cycle can range from 17 to 26 days, or up to 12 generations per summer season, so long as there are lilies to eat.

Studies underway in Waltham suggest that BioNeem kills both the eggs and grubs, but requires multiple applications. Diazinon, sevin, malathion and rotenone control the feeding grubs and adults. No control for the underground pupa has been found yet, although beneficial nematodes are being tested. (I tried malathion on the leaves with limited success so far. I found it most important to spray both the top and bottom of the leaves and to check and spray repeatedly, as it is easy to miss a leaf or an egg cluster. Continued checking throughout the season is also critical to control beetles that fly in or unseen pupa that transform under the soil.)

Adult red lily beetles lay their eggs and the voracious grubs feed only on true lillies. (The adults however, have been known to munch on other plants.) True lillies, including our native turkscap lily, hybrid Asiatic and Trumpet lilies and the huge flowering and highly fragrant hybrid Oriental lilies, grow from bulbs. They bear clusters of long lasting flowers atop strong, leaf bearing stems. The red lily beetle (does not) attack any member of the daylily family (Hemerocallis), which are not true lillies. Daylilies are fibrous (Hemerocallis), which are not true lillies. Daylilies are fibrous rooted plants with lily-like flowers produced on leafless stems above wide, strap-like, grassy foliage. Daylily flowers last only one day.

You can be sure that I will try everything to control this immigrant pest in my garden, including removing my lilies if necessary. I am truly sorry to bring the news of its arrival in our area, but hope that this early warning helps.

The devastating Red Lily Beetle has arrived in Tewksbury. Egg clusters are found on the underside of true lily leaves. The larva (grubs) cover themselves in excrement while feeding on lily leaves, leaving a skeleton behind. The grubs, without their "worst dressed" coating, are light brown with a black head. The adult beetles are bright red, three eighths of an inch long with black legs and antennae. Check your plants. This immigrant insect is devastating ornamental lilies in gardens from Boston into the northern and western suburbs, and now in Tewksbury.

Above are four of the five stages, eggs, covered grubs, uncovered grubs and an adult. For size compare to the push pin on the right.

Below on the left is a true lily. Note the leaves all up and down the stem. On the right is a Daylily. No leaves on the stem and it blooms and dies in one day. It is not affected by these beetles.

Backyard composting lecture offered July 18

Find out how you can turn leaves, grass, weeds and food scraps into rich soil. On Tuesday, July 18, at 7 p.m., the second in a series of workshops on backyard composting sponsored by the Town of Wilmington will be held in the town hall auditorium.

David Grise and Julie Gosse, two Wilmington residents who are avid composters, will lead the presentation. The meeting will include an overview of the process for composting, a 15 minute video tape presentation "Turning Your Spoils to Soils," handout material and samples of material in various stages of compost.

The workshop is intended to be very interactive, questions and discussion are encouraged.

Over 50 residents attended the June workshop. Residents received instruction on the "dos" and "don'ts" of generating compost. Several residents offered their own experiences on everything from ways to make your own compost bins to materials to include in the compost pile. The July workshop is sure to generate some lively discussion.

Compost bins will be available Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the public buildings office (658-3017) on Middlesex Avenue and at the public works garage (658-4481) on Andover Street. Residents may purchase the "Earth Machine" at the public buildings office or purchase the "Brave New Composter" at the public works garage. Contact the respective offices for details.

Community blood drive at Elks

The American Red Cross has an important message for all healthy individuals across the state: Please remember to donate blood. The need for blood never stops - someone, somewhere needs blood, and that someone could be your friend or neighbor, the Red Cross reminds.

They will also be in town later this month.

The Tewksbury-Wilmington Elks will play host to a dual-community Super Summer Blood Drive on Monday, July 24, from 2-8 p.m.

You may be eligible to donate blood if you are in good health, 18 years of age or older (17 years with a signed American Red Cross Parental/Guardian Consent Form), weigh at least 110 pounds, have no history of hepatitis and have no history of exposure to the AIDS virus.

Your help is needed. The Red Cross wants to ensure this summer that blood is available to all who require it - maybe a newborn, someone undergoing surgery, or a cancer patient.

The Tewksbury/Wilmington Community Super Summer Blood Drive is being sponsored by D'Angelos, Market Basket, Domino's Pizza, McDonald's, the Tewksbury Town Blood Committee, the Elks, the Knights of Columbus and the Masons.

Food, raffles and babysitting promise to make the much-needed donation experience practical and painless for all involved.

To register to give blood, call the American Red Cross at 1-800-258-0025.

The Commissioners meeting will be held in the function room of the Senior Center Tuesday, July 18 at 1:30 p.m. This will be the first meeting of fiscal 1995. The Commissioners will be starting to put together plans for the upcoming year. Any senior can participate in the meeting with suggestions, but it should be understood that the commissioners are the only ones who vote on a suggestion. They would like very much to see more seniors attending their monthly meetings. Being volunteers, they would welcome comments from the seniors present. The majority of meetings last approximately one hour and are televised. Because of the lack of help at the TV station we were informed the meetings will not be televised live from the center. It will be shown on the TV later that evening and a few times later during the month.

Thanks, Lions, volunteers

Grateful thanks are extended to the Lions Club for donating 100 catered holiday dinners to our shutin seniors last Friday morning in celebration of the July 4 holiday. We thank Jim Buckley of the Lions Club for taking time out of his busy schedule that morning to accompany Frank Ratto, a volunteer driver. Frank drove Jim and our volunteer photographer Henry Latta from house to house taking a hot meal to very grateful seniors.

All of our volunteers in this very rewarding program assure us the holidays are made so much more meaningful to them as they are to the shutin seniors who receive the dinners. Along with Jim, Frank and Henry, we also thank the other driver volunteers, Tom Barrasso, Ruth Bouvier, Ruth Campos, Ruth Curtis, Kay Greene, Claire Goodwin, Grace Kirkland, Marilyn and Joe McCarthy, June and Gerry Thuillier, Ann VonKahle for donating their precious time in making some very nice people so happy.

Woodworking class

The woodworking class is held every Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon. The seniors in the class are in the process of making wooden toys for the woodworking table at the December Fair. Any senior who would like to help in the class by cutting out pieces, sanding, putting the toys together and painting the items would be welcome in the class. All of our other classes held in the center are now making articles for their tables at the Fair. As I mentioned before, the Fair is getting closer, now it is a little more than four months away. Not too much time to fill our tables with Christmas gifts for all ages.

We will need every senior's help. The money we will make on the fair keeps all our classes and programs free to Wilmington residents 60 years and older. Don't worry if you do not know how to make an item, the seniors will teach you.

Wednesday, July 19 podiatrist Dr. Casey will be at the center starting at 9 a.m. He will be treating ailments of the feet on appointment only. Call the center for an appointment.

Nurse Ann will be checking blood pressures and giving diabetes tests on Thursday, July 20 beginning at 1:30 p.m. With the summer months upon us if you have not had a diabetes test in some time it would be wise to have one before you indulge in those delicious ice cream desserts.

If you have not received your chance books for the Fair, you can pick them up from Kay as you enter the center. It is hoped that all of us will buy at least one book. The prizes will be to all our satisfaction.

Swiezynski tosses seven shutout innings in Major League All-Star debut

by James Pote

Practice surely pays off.

Just a day before their first appearance in the Major League All-Star games, Wilmington's head coach Ron Grasso had his squad practice bunting for an hour and a half. And in the seventh inning with no score in their game against Wakefield American, Grasso's team laid down three perfect bunts to win a 4-0 extra inning game.

"Derek's (McLaren) bunt really broke the game wide open. His was perfect as was Steve Brown's suicide squeeze. This was a great game, a great win and everyone contributed," said Grasso.

But, the real story of the game was the fantastic arm of pitcher Eric Swiezynski. The right-handed fireballer went the distance giving up just five hits and two walks while striking out 16 batters.

"Eric pitched a sensational, sensational game. He pitched absolutely flawless. The defense was their when he needed it and it was a team win," Grasso said.

Indeed the defense did help out Swiezynski, most especially in the first inning. With a runner on second and two outs, Wakefield's clean-up hitter smacked a single up the middle, where center fielder Andy Hackett charged and threw a perfect on-line throw to catcher Jim Fennelly, who applied the tag to get out of any early troubles.

The game was delayed for a little over a half an hour after the third inning with rain. The game was still scoreless with both pitchers, Swiezynski and Mike Bergeron cruising along.

Swiezynski benefited from the delay as he appeared to get stronger as the game went on. He yielded three hits through the first three innings, while striking out seven. And in the last four innings, he gave up just two hits, while striking out nine batters - that was with his fastball getting faster and faster.

Bergeron, on the other hand, pitched very strong, too. But, he was victimized by some defensive errors in the seventh inning. Prior to the delay, he gave up two hits and one walk while striking out five batters. His last four innings, he gave up six hits, one walk, while striking out just three.

Bergeron escaped a few of Wilmington's scoring chances. In the second, Jim Fennelly was left on third base and in the third inning Wilmington left runners at second and third.

With zero's put up on the scoreboard after the six regulation innings, Wilmington started things off in the seventh with a bang. Josh Hiltz led off the inning with a single. Next batter, Scott Buck sacrificed him to second, but reached first on a throwing error. Derek McLaren followed with a bunt single where Hiltz came all away from second to score the first and the winning run.

After an out, Steve Brown put down another bunt on a sacrifice squeeze play to score Buck and advance the lead to 2-0.

Third baseman Mike Montalto then stepped up to the plate on the ensuing rally and he blooped a single in behind the shortstop's head. The shortstop then made a terrific play as he turned, got the ball on one bounce and with one motion, he fired the ball to the plate to get McLaren out.

The next two runs came in on a throwing error and Wilmington went on with 4-0 win.

Majors lose on Tuesday

On Tuesday night, the major all-star team lost to Arlington Nationals by a score of 6-3.

With this loss, the team still remains in the tournament as it is double elimination. They will now play on Saturday, with the game most likely being away.

Josh Hiltz went the entire game on the mound and he pitched very well. A few defensive plays, hurt in this game.

"Our defense was not up to par today. Josh pitched well enough to win and I thought we should have," said head coach Ron Grasso.

Wilmington was down 4-1 after three innings and they scored two on a sacrifice fly by Josh Howlett which scored Eric Swiezynski, who roped a double to the fence. The second run came in on a rbi hit by Andy Hackett.

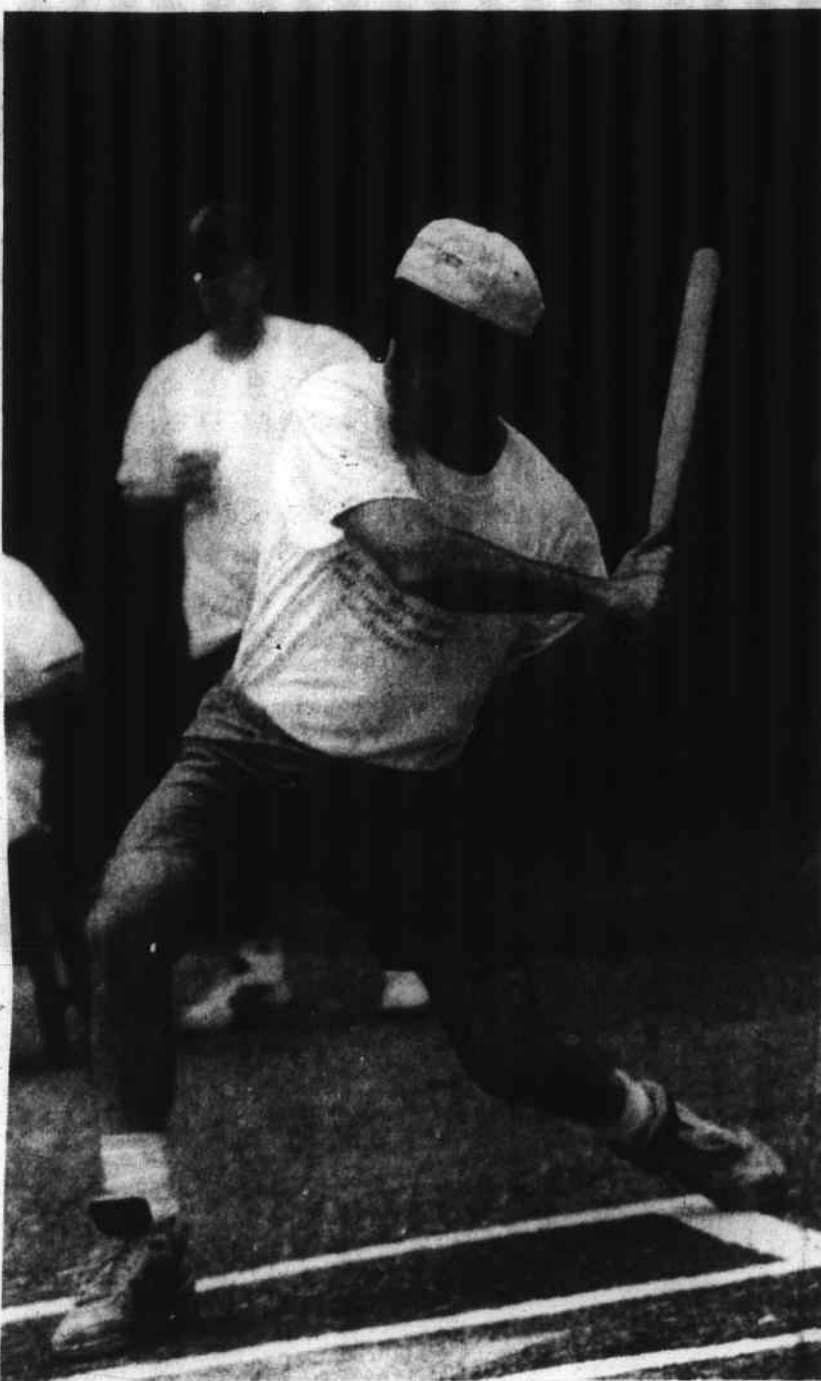

Also in that inning, Wilmington's Kevin Forgett made the inning interesting as he was on second base as a pinch runner and Hiltz hit a ball that went through the legs of the first baseman and into right field.

Forgett was being waved in to score but smartly he saw that he was going to be a dead duck at the plate, so he turned and tried to get back to third. He then got himself in a rundown and was eventually tagged out.

Wilmington had their chances in the last inning when they were down 6-3. Andy Hackett walked in between two strikeouts. Josh Hiltz kept the rally going with a single and then lead-off batter Steve Brown walked to load the bases. With two outs and the bases loaded and down by three runs, Wilmington was not able to keep the rally going as the next batter grounded out to the pitcher.

However, the team is still alive and they certainly have the talent to keep going.

16 and under softball team loses first game

by James Pote

The Wilmington girls 16 and under all-star softball team lost its first game of the double elimination tournament to Woburn Nationals, 8-2 on Tuesday night.

The team will now play Wednesday night when they travel to take on Stoneham. If they win that game, they then must win on Friday to host a game on Sunday.

As for the game, according to head coach Jay Neale, mistakes hurt the team.

"We beat ourselves. But, I look at this line-up and I see a great team, so I know we can bounce back," he said.

Jeannine Neale was the losing pitcher, but it was not fault of her own.

As for the hitting, Kristen Thomas led with a 3-4 performance, and she was followed by Michelle McGonagle who was 2-2 and Leanne Bento and Jackie Eldridge, who both had rbi hits.

Team Bud crowned champs for second time

by James Pote
For the second time in three years of the tournament, Team Bud won the annual Knights of Columbus Wiffleball Tournament which was held all day Saturday at the K of C parking lot.

Last year, three of Team Bud's players couldn't challenge for the title and this year the team was backed to its form when the beat Team Strato in the finals by a score of 8-1.

In last week's Town Crier, it was mistakenly written that Team Bud of two years ago was made up of Brian Savosik, Tom "Tortes" Gracia, Kevin Brander and Rich Hayden. But, it was not Rich Hayden as the fourth member of the winning team, it was Sean Keogan.

Team Bud never lost in this year's double elimination tournament. Both Savosik and Gracia led the way on the mound, and both of them pitched very impressive.

In the championship game against Team Strato a team led by Wilmington natives Jay Barrett and Dave Deming, Team Bud came out on top by a score of 8-1. Gracia was the winning pitcher and he was helped out immediately with the plastic as Kevin "Beak" Brander, who smashed a Deming offering up into the trees past the fence for a grand slam. Team Bud never looked back.

This year's champions came home as the winners once again as they split the $200 sum which was given out to the winners. Team Strato took home $100.

It was a complete team effort in the victories throughout the tournament for Team Bud. Gracia, the team's captain, said the other three members of the team, always supplied the big hit when the team needed it.

Co-commissioners Gerry O'Reilly and Jerry Lawrenson had this to say about the third successful tournament. "This year was great. It was alot more organized and the pitching was a lot better than the past two years. A lot of this year's teams were very competitive and most of the games were very close," agreed the two of them.

There were a few surprises to this year's tournament. Team Red Dog, who were laughed out of the tournament last year, came back with three victories behind the solid pitching of late edition Bob Conchiglia. Yours truly was one of the players on the team along with Tom Ducey, John Martins and Mike King with Conchiglia.

In the wee hours of the morning, Team Red Dog beat Team Hooper 16-2 behind first inning grand slams by Ducey and Conchiglia. Their next game they went up against the runners-up in the tournament, Team Strato and they lost 7-1 behind superb pitching by Dave Deming.

Deming held the fort down when he yielded just one hit which was a bomb by Martins. Deming was helped out two home runs by Jay Barrett and in the ceremonies after the final game, Barrett was given the wiffleball in which he hit the first home run ever in his life.

Now in the loser's bracket, the next opponent for the Team Red Dog was the One-Timers. Tom Ducey hit a three run home run in the first inning, as that was all that was needed for the 3-1 win. A few hours later, the team continued its winning ways with a come from behind 4-3 win over Team Gracia. Four straight walks gave them the win in the bottom of the fourth inning.

Team Red Dog, then had a tough opponent and that was last year's champions, who changed their name from the Crawdads to Chocolate and Cheese. Both pitchers, Bob Conchiglia and Bob Voner yielded just one hit each, and Bob Surran blasted a two run homer for the defending champs in the first inning for the 2-0 victory.

Speaking of Chocolate and Cheese, they had another impressive performance in the tourney, but they just couldn't muster out a few wins.

Their first loss came when they walked seven straight batters in the last inning to send them into the loser's bracket. The second came to the hands of Team Strato, in a tough back and forth battle. Both Bob Voner and Bob Surran pitched very well, but they just didn't have enough to surpass the two teams.

Other impressive teams were the Old-Timers who had Kevin Reese on the hill throwing bullets and also Team Hammer behind pitcher Keith Dinnette and teammates Ron Lawrenson and Fran Winnett.

Suburban Pony Team defeats North Reading

by James Pote
Even though it was not pretty, they got the job done.

This game featured a combined 22 walks, 12 hits, 14 runs, nine errors, seven wild pitches, six stolen bases and 22 players left on base, in a span of two hours and 22 minutes.

But, the Wilmington Suburban League Pony Team sponsored by Town Market Citgo, has won three in a row - that included the 9-5 win over North Reading on Monday night, to push their record up to 5-4 overall.

Despite the game being down out, the team has actually come along way, according to head coach Chris Larson. But, he admitted there is still a lot of work to do.

"We are playing better, but there is still a lot of mental mistakes," Larson said.

Wilmington was down to North Reading 2-1 going into the bottom of the third, where they broke the game wide open when they scored five runs. Matt Roux was the only batter to have a rbi hit in the inning, while, both Peter Grasso and Andy Palanga both walked with the bases loaded to force in two runs. The other two runs came in on an error and a wild pitch.

The next three innings, Wilmington scored one run each. Buddy Phillips reached base on a fielder's choice which scored Joe Grasso in the fourth inning. Jim O'Donnell scored in the sixth when Peter Grasso got himself in a rundown on an attempted pick-off play in which Grasso was able to get back to first on a dropped ball to allow O'Donnell to score.

Kevin Carroll scored the ninth and final run for Wilmington in the bottom of the sixth, after he singled and came home on a wild pitch.

Wilmington sent out Matt Roux on the hill. And despite struggling with his control with 12 walks, he gave up just four hits and three earned runs. After retiring the first four batters, Roux walked three out of the next four batters before escaping trouble when he got the next batter to groundout to third.

North Reading scored two in the third when Roux walked three batters and gave up two hits - and after that point he only gave up one hit.

Wilmington did show off a few nice plays in the field. Shortstop Peter Grasso made a nice play going to his right in the fifth to help Roux in a 1-2-3 inning. Catcher Mike Berian also made a nice catch in foul ground in that same inning.

As for the hitting, Peter Grasso was the lone Wilmington to have two hits, while, Dave DeAmato, Joe Grasso, Kevin Carroll, Matt Roux, Brian McCarthy and Jim O'Donnell all had one hit each.

Bob Conchiglia was one of the biggest surprises at the wiffleball tournament as he and his teammates Team Red Dog played very well throughout the tourney with three wins. (Photo by Steve Picano).

Cape Ann Pony Team off to quick 2-0 start

by James Pote
Baseball is starting to get its winning ways back again here in Wilmington, as yet another summer team is off to its winning ways.

And this time it is the 13-15 year old Cape Ann Pony League Team which is sponsored by the American Legion. The team which is coached by Kevin Ferrari and Bob Willcox, have a perfect 2-0 record.

"The kids are playing great thus far," agreed the two coaches.

"We have had good pitching, hitting and defense - it's nice to see kids playing ball and playing it well," Willcox continued.

Their first win was an 8-4 victory over North Andover. 13 year-old Brian Binkoski started on the hill giving up just one run in three innings. He gave way to Chris MacDonald who got the win.

With the game tied at four apiece in the bottom of the seventh, with the bases loaded and two outs, Mike Willcox singled home the winning run for the team's first win of the season.

Also playing well in the opener were Rich Marquis and Pat Heffernan who led with the bats.

On Sunday, the team traveled to Topsfield to take on that same club. This time around the offense showed even more potential when they won by a score of 11-9. Rich Marquis started on the hill and once again Chris MacDonald came in relief and got the victory.

Tom Southmayd, another 13 year old player, got the winning hit. Pat Heffernan and Sean McNabb had a combined five hits, while, Kevin Carroll played fine defense at shortstop.

Jack's Team qualifies for Nationals

by James Pote
In the last inning of the championship game with the score tied at nine, Cheers II of Webster, Mass., won the game after two were out, with a triple off a what would have been a sensational catch by left fielder Ray Mercuri and then a single from a diving play by shortstop Tom Moran.

After being the champions of the winner's bracket, Jack's Team of Wilmington entered the championship game where they had to be beaten twice by the team they just put in the loser's bracket in Cheers by a score of 11-5, in the Men's Major A softball tournament that was held this past weekend in Gardner, Mass.

They were beaten twice, but not to make any excuses, four of their starting players were playing hurt. One was taped up for a pulled hamstring, while others were bandaged up for a knee, ankle and another but serious knee injury. The last of those injuries came to pitcher Paul Bova who pitched every inning of the six games.

"I'm very proud of the kids and the way they played. To be able to play with the injuries they did and the way they played showed a lot. They proved a lot and I'm extremely proud of them," said Jack Cushing.

With the second place earning, the team has now qualified to play in the Nationals on Labor Day weekend in Wilmington, North Carolina. This upcoming weekend, they will host the state tournament which could feature possibly nine of the top Class A teams from around the area. One of those teams will be Wolfe Real Estate which is also from Wilmington.

In the first game of this tournament from this past weekend, Jack's Team went up against the Gardner Club. Paul Bova led his teammates to a 9-2 win when he went the distance giving up just four hits, while, striking out nine. Tom Moran, Donnie Foley and Tom Aprile all had three hits each.

In the second game, it was a case of the comeback kids. Down by two runs with two outs in the last inning, Tom Aprile walked and he scored on a Ray Mercuri hit. Mercuri then crossed the plate on a game winning triple by Tim Moran.

Mercuri and Jim Litwinski led the attack with five hits between them.

In the third game of the tournament, Jack's Team demolished JBM Services who was the second team from Gardner. Paul Bova threw the five inning, four hitter with five strikeouts. As for the bats in this game, Bob Aprile clocked a three run homer while also having a single and a double. Bova and Mike Alornado also had three hits each.

The next game was the first of three against Cheers II. The first one, Jack's Team won 11-5 behind a five rbi day performance from Alornado. Tom Aprile also had three hits.

In the second meeting of these two teams, Jack's team needed just one more win and they would have walked away with the championship, but they fell 2-1 despite a six hitter from Bova. Bob Aprile had two hits and his nephew Tommy had the lone rbi.

Finally in the championship game, Jack's lost 10-9 with the loss coming in the bottom of the seventh (as said earlier). Ray Mercuri was the star of the game when he stole home and made four outstanding running catches in left field. Bova, Tom Aprile, Tim Moran and Alornado combined for 12 hits.

honors were shared by Krista Roberts, Keri Gillespie, Lynne Gearty and Elena Crupi.

Rockies vs Angels

Rockies ace Colleen Cahill pitched an outstanding game against the Angels. Offensively, the Rockies hitting stars were Kristen Kacamburas, Meghan Fudge and Stacey Comer. Colleen Cahill had a homerun for the Rockies.

The Angels bats were quiet for the first few innings but hits by Krista, Erika and Ashley Person got the offense rolling.

A's crowned champions for second straight year

A's 4 Orioles 0

In the first round of playoff action, the first place A's defeated the Orioles 4-0 in Wilmington major league baseball play.

Tim Riley went the distance for the A's limiting the O's to one hit, two walks while striking out 12. Greg LeFave provided the key hit for the A's knocking in two runs in the second.

Other offensive contributors for the A's were Jeff Coughlin (two hits), Danny Tello (double) and Jack Webb (two walks). Pitching well for the Orioles was Josh Howlet who limited the A's to five hits. Brian Roberts provided the only offensive highlight for the O's cracking a two base hit leading off in the fifth.

A's 3 Yankees 2

Strong pitching from Eric Swiezynski guided the A's past the determined Yankees in second round playoff action, 3-2. Swiezynski held the Yankees to four hits while striking out 12.

The Yankees also got strong pitching from Steve Brown and Dave Rappoli who held the A's to only five hits. Offensive stars for the A's were Justin Harrison with two rbi's and Jason Barrett who slugged his second homerun of the year.

The Yankee's offense was sparked by Krazanski (two hits), Brown and Silva.

A's 5 Tigers 1

In the first game of the championship series the A's used solid pitching, good fielding and timely hitting to defeat the hungry Tigers 5-1.

Timmy Riley went the distance for the A's striking out seven while working out of several jams along the way. Mike Senarian led off the third inning with a solid shot to right which was followed by consecutive hits by Tello (two) Riley and Swiezynski which broke the game open.

Turning in nice games in the field for the A's were Chris Dancewicz and Greg LeFave. Joey Ranno (two hits), Danny Alosco, Josh Hiltz, Rob Garrett, and Peter Reichel all had hits for the Tigers while Scott Buck back boned the Tigers' defense from behind the plate.

A's 5 Tigers 1

The A's swept the town championship winning the second game of the layoff-series 5-1 over the Tigers. The A's jumped out to a one run lead as Kevin Forgett started the game with a double and was driven home by a Timmy Riley base hit. A spectacular catch the Tigers' center fielder, Joey Ranno, kept the A's from doing further damage. The A's scored another run in the second on a Greg LeFave walk followed by singles from Andy Myers and Brandon Coutois.

The Tigers got on the board in the fourth inning on a Josh Hiltz walk, who stole second and scored by Joey Ranno's line drive to left. The A's miscue and consecutive hits from Eric Swiezynski and Jason Barrett.

Both sides got excellent pitching. Eric Swiezynski for the A's (nine ks), Andy Hackett and Josh Hiltz for the Tigers who combined for eight strikeouts.

Congratulations to both teams for a well played series and a great season.

Murray tosses one-hitter for Northeast League

by James Pote

The Tewksbury Northeast Baseball League team added three more victories to its season this past week, when they ran past Billerica 10-2, Lowell 5-3 and Dracut 15-0.

Dracut's win was the most notable as Matt Murray had a no-hitter with two outs in the last inning when Tim Demonds of Dracut broke up the gem - he did finish with a one-hit shutout.

Brian Morris was 4-5 and he led the offense in the Dracut game and he was followed by Rick Breslin, Jason Sullivan, Ron Heald, Matt Petros and Derek Heald, who all had two hits each.

Against Lowell, Brian Morris pitched a solid game for the win with the three runs coming in on two wild pitches and a bases loaded walk. He only gave up two hits.

As for the offense against Lowell, Morris had a two run triple, while, Breslin, Joe Suprenant and Eric McClafferty all had two hits each.

Finally, the bats continued to stay hot with a 10-2 win over Billerica: Wayne Carroll and Carl Cyr combined on the hill with the former giving up no hits thru five. McClafferty, Morris and Petros all had two hits each while, the star of the night was Mark Bradley, who was 3-4 with two rbi's.

Boudreau, Carlson go deep for all-stars

by James Pote

It was a powerful trifecta on Tuesday night for the Tewksbury 12 year old National All-Star team. Both Mark Boudreau and Ryan Carlson went deep as they trounce over Andover 9-1, for their third win of the tournament thus far.

The team will now play next Tuesday night (site and time not known yet).

Scott Favareau got his second win of the tournament, as he tossed a four hitter, while, striking out ten batters. He has had quit a tournament for himself, as he is 2-0 on the mound, and he also hit a homerun in the bottom of the eight inning to give the team its second win over Billerica, 3-2.

Carlson was also very impressive at the plate against Andover, as he was 2-3 with four rbi's including what is estimated at a 230 foot shot over the rightcenter fence. Favareau, Brian O'Hara and Duran McNeill all had two hits in the game, while, Ryan Kerrigan also had a rbi hit.

The game was moving very quickly with Tewksbury leading 1-0 after four until they broke it open with six runs in the fifth thanks to the round trippers by Boudreau and Favareau. Head coach Tony Ganchi, was very happy with the win.

"We have had a lot of help from many different people who come down and pitch batting practice to these kids and they show them all different looks and that's why they are hitting the way they have been," he said.

"Scott pitched a great game. The defense was solid and I couldn't of asked for more," he continued.

Steve Brown, who recently just moved here from New Jersey, has been a major contributor to the Wilmington Major League All-Star team. (Photo by Steve Picano).

HOMEOWNER BONUS

QUESTION: If I increase the fire insurance on my home, how would it affect my personal property coverage which is a part of the overall homeowner's policy?

ANSWER: When you increase the insurance limits on your home, the dollar amount of financial protection automatically increases on your personal property, as well as on the dwelling structure.

Normally, under the homeowner's package policy, the limits on personal property are set at 50 percent of the limits on the dwelling. For example, if you increase the limits on the dwelling by $60,000, the limits on the personal property automatically jump by $30,000.

Vaughn, Naehring and O'Leary lead way for Sox at halfway mark

by James Pote

It is the halfway point of the Red Sox season, and as everyone knows they are in first place. Just last week, they made a very smart trade when they picked up Rick Aguilera for Frankie Rodriguez. Smart move, but I would have rathered Jeff Montgomery of the Royals or Rod Beck of the Giants. Now, all the Sox need is another starter and for Mark Whiten to come back to his usual style of play and they will be alright.

This trade for Aguilera is just like the one they made a few years ago when they were in the pennant race when they acquired Larry Anderson from the Astros for Jeff Bagwell. Still to this day, I believe the Sox had to do the trade for Anderson, especially when their closer Jeff Reardon was injured. At that time, Wade Boggs was still among the league leaders in batting with Scott Cooper right behind him. And across the diamond, the Sox had Mo Vaughn and Carlos Quintana at first - so, Bagwell was deep in the depth chart and also at that time, he was not considered a home run hitter. Whenever a team is missing a piece of the puzzle when they have a chance to win a World Series, a team has to get that piece, even if it means giving up a part of the future. They did that, and they have done that now - it's the smart thing to do.

Before the season started, I said the Sox would finish second behind the Blue Jays. I'm dead wrong on that prediction, but I'm doing pretty well with the rest of them (Indians, A's, Braves, Reds and Padres were my prediction and three of them are in first place). Since the Sox are in first place, I figured to give out my own grades of the players' performances thus far. First the hitters.

Mo Vaughn - A The slugger is tops in the league in homers and rbi's. He does strikeout a lot and his fielding still needs work, but having 24 dingers at the break is not too bad.

Troy O'Leary - A O'Leary was picked up off waivers at the end of spring training, and boy does he have a sweet swing - it is probably the nicest I have seen since John Olerud. I like him because everytime he hits the ball, he hits it very hard.

Tim Naehring - A Even though I said before the year started that he would have a subpar year, he is having an all-star year and he does deserve to be on the team. His defensive plays have really surprise me, and hopefully he can keep up his offense.

Mike Greenwell - B+ Despite a few bonehead plays, Greenie is having a pretty good year. He hustles and he is batting .301, but it is a thinking man's game and who knows what he thinks during a game?

Lee Tinsley - B Tinsley has proven that he can do the job if not better than Otis Nixon. He was acquired as probably Dan Duquette's biggest steal - but he has to steal more to be more of a complete player.

John Valentin - B The best all around shortstop in the league and probably my favorite player since Jim Rice and Rick Sutcliffe retired, started out of the gate on a tear. He has slowed down a bit to drop his grade, but he is probably the best all around hitter on the team.

Reggie Jefferson - B- I wish this guy could play another position - boy he can hit the ball. A great hitter who has done a fine job off the bench filling in for Canseco.

Bill Haselman - C I really like Bill Haselman - he is so much better than Rich Rowland. He has some pop in his bat, but the thing I really like about him is he is always talking to MacFarlane on the bench - especially right after his teammates got off the field - and too me, at least he is trying to become a better player.

Jose Canseco - C- When the Sox acquired Jose before the season, everyone loved him. Now, he has gone through a few injuries and he is starting to get his timing back and everyone leaped off the bandwagon - and believe me, they will be back very shortly. He will carry the team when they come back from the break when they have 13 of their first 18 games at home.

Luis Alicea - C- I really like Alicea too. He has more range than any other second baseman the Sox have had in a long time. He is starting to hit better, but he does tend to get lazy. I also thought he would have more stolen bases than he does now (5).

Mike MacFarlane - C- At the start of the year, Mike was having a lot of problems catching the ball and throwing out runners. He calls a great game and he is doing better defensively, but his average of .204 is not that great. He has to relax his bat for the second half.

Chris Donnels - D- He has always had the reputation of being a good pinch hitter, but he has been a disappointment.

Mark Whiten - D- Yes, he has struggled, but he is one player who is fascinating to watch. Hopefully the Sox will not give up on him and he will come back to a groove because he can hit and just his arm alone moved him up from an F to a D.

Incompletes: Rich Rowland, Terry Shumpert, Steve Rodriguez, Juan Bell, Wes Chamberlain, Ron Mahay, Tuffy Rhodes and Matt Stairs.

Pitchers:

Tim Wakefield - A+ He has been just perfect. I have always followed him ever since he was demoted from Pittsburgh and I knew the day they signed him he would come back and be a major contributor to the team. His will be among the top three in the Cy Young Award - watch!

Erik Hanson - B+ He is another player who I have always followed since his Seattle days when he was a 17 game winner. His stuff is great but he has tailed off as of late.

Rheal Cormier - B Dan Duquette surely knew what he was doing as he wouldn't of done the Cooper for Whiten deal without this unproven southpaw in it. He did his homework and Cormier has been effective in every role that has been given to him.

Stan Belinda - B- Belinda started off very well but he has not been that all effective in the past week or two - maybe a few days rest will get him back especially since he will go back to the role that suits him best, and that is, set up man.

Mike Maddux - B- Duquette liked Maddux last year because he almost traded Joe Hesketh straight up for him. He has done a terrific job, especially of late and Kennedy and his staff must of saw something in the journey man pitcher because he has done an impressive job.

Aaron Sele - C+ Out of all the injuries, the Sox have had, this one is one of the toughest. The Sox desperately need him back soon.

Roger Clemens - C Roger will not be the same Roger unless he starts throwing the fastball again. He has not thrown it as much the past few years and he needs it back to be effective.

Vaughn Eshelman - C- Once again Duquette did his homework cause who would of thought that he would come in at the start of the year and throw the way he did. He is struggling but he is telegraphing his change-up and his fastball isn't the same.

Zane Smith - D He is struggling, but the Sox need Zane Smith whether in the rotation or in the pen. He is a smart pitcher and a player you want on a team if they are to win.

Derek Lilliquist - F He is having a disaster season but he has put up impressive numbers through the years - he can throw hard but he is just don't getting the job done.

What do the Sox need to do in second half? - from page 17

Ken Ryan - F Mr. Ryan, throw the fastball and throw it some more. He is very overpowering but Kennedy killed him when he tried him two innings and then some in many games. He is not a closer, he is a good set up man/occasional closer like Belinda.

Incompletes: Brian Bark, Rick Aguilera, Joe Hudson, Brian Looney, Tim Vangemond, Alexandro Pena, Mike Hartley, Joel Johnston, Jeff Pierce and Keith Shepard.

Kevin Kennedy - B+ I like Kennedy a lot and he has done a terrific job especially with all of the injuries, but I think he ruined Ken Ryan. He started off the season with the hit and run and straight out steals a lot and now he has not done it as of late. Again, he has done a great job and maybe it will easier with Aguilera on the decision of the pen but the team still needs to run and run more to manufacturer runs.

Dan Duquette - A Dan has done a very good job since he arrived here. Every move is thought out - and that was never done with Lou Gorman. Although Lou made a few steals himself, Dan has already surpassed him. Some of his moves have not panned out, but he makes those up with other moves. The Aguilera deal, was another steal.

What do they need in the second half?

There is still some work to do for this club to win it all. The team desperately needs Aaron Sele, Chris Howard and Carlos Rodriguez back. Jose Canseco, Mike MacFarlane and Willie McGee have to help pick up the slack - Aguilera has to pitch the way he has for the last five years. Tim Wakefield, Rheal Cormier, Troy O'Leary, Tim Naehring and Lee Tinsley have to keep up their unexpected play. And Mark Whiten has to come back with his potent bat.

If Sele doesn't come back right away expect Duquette to go out and acquire another starter. I don't think he has enough to get a Cone or a Saberhagen, but a Kevin Tapini, John Burkett or Pete Harnisch could be had and could help.

Prediction:

The Tigers will quickly fall and the Orioles will come alive again. The Sox will win its division and beat the winner of the Western Division (I still like the A's, but if they fall out I guess the pathetic Rangers would be the next choice). Thereafter, they won't have enough to surpass the Indians, who I said at the start of the year would win it all. But, even that would be nice to see.

About The Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

What a tale!

Seven Woburn stories

The Woburn Planning Board has given final approval to a new seven-story office building on Commerce Way, according to the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle" with some restrictions and conditions on parking, landscaping and traffic signs.

It will be the first high-rise built in the city since "the boom times" in the 1980s, according to the "Times."

The 71,300-foot structure will be built by Cummings Properties on a 13-acre parcel near a 127,200-square-foot one-story building currently on the site.

As approved, the plan would require the elimination of parking on the north side of the access road leading into the property and prohibit parking along the first 250 feet on the south side, after which parallel parking would be allowed. Jamie McKeown and Michael Pascavage of Cummings Properties caused some discussion when they said they want to keep some parking along the south side of the access road to discourage tractor trailers from parking there, a serious problem they've been trying to resolve.

One condition placed on the proposal was that the developer allow space for a future third lane on the access road when either the I-93 connector or the extension of Commerce Way to Presidential Way are built. McKeown and Pascavage also agreed to a gate - in accordance with Fire Department regulations - at the emergency access road from Woburn Mall into the site. Board members were concerned that without a gate, the emergency road would become a short cut.

The building is expected to be completed by March 1996.

More Stoneham stats'

The 14 of the "1994 top 25 paid employees" who do not live in Stoneham are Superintendent of Schools Dr. Ellen Bueschel (Boston), Police Lt. Major Joseph DelRossi (Wakefield), Town Administrator Jeffrey Nutting (Medway), Police Lt. Charles Haney, Jr. (Melrose), Stoneham High Principal Thomas Ryan, Jr. (Bedford), Police Sergeant Frank Deltergo (Charlestown), Stoneham High Vice Principal James Campagna, Jr. ("Salem, Grover"), Police Sergeant Robert Swasey (Lynnfield), Special Education Director Frank Gagliardi (Melrose), South School Principal Paula Sline (Medford), Middle School Principal James Andreottola (Hamilton), Police Patrolman Robert McKinnon (North Andover), and Central School Principal Nancy Peterson (Reading).

Stoneham's 1994 top 25 paid townwide employees who live in town, according to the "Stoneham Independent," are: Police Lieutenant Gregory O'Keefe, Police Chief Eugene Passaro, Police Sergeant Thomas Taranti, Police Sergeant William Surette, Police Detective John Leccese, Police Detective Richard McDonough, Fire Chief William McLaughlin, Robin Hood Principal Maureen Soley, Stoneham High Guidance Director William Murphy, Police Sergeant Thomas Donofrio, and Town Counsel William Solomon.

When the top 25 list is narrowed to include only municipal - not school - employees, the number of out-of-towners shrinks to 10.

Former teacher Peg McHugh

outstanding creative valentines. The joke, she says, was their teacher was "virtually without talent in the art arena."

Pilot programs were always part of McHugh's teaching plan whether in phonics, individualized reading or math. "I always wanted to try something new and challenging to give the children the best possible programs we could offer," she says.

McHugh's enthusiasm about her classroom can be equaled only by her enthusiasm about her family: father, daughter, and grandchildren. Once Hilltop, her "second home" is eliminated, her favorite vacation spot is Ireland. She's been there three times, plans to take her grandchildren, vividly recalls her first trip: "I took my father who had not been to his birthplace for 57 years," she says. "He met a sister there whom he had never met - she hadn't been born when he first came to the U.S. at age 18."

Her most rewarding memories are as a mom, raising daughter Alicen, a labor and delivery R.N. and childbirth education instructor at Boston Regional Medical Center, whose family she lives with "in Greenwood, of course": Alicen, son-in-law Barry and "my three grandchildren whom I adore." For Christmas, she sent Ryan, age 10, to Space Camp in Florida. "I love to share their interests," she says. "Juliane, age seven, loves animals and dancing." As for Brendan: "He keeps me very young," she says. "I feel like it's been a good day if we get in at least 10 games of basketball and keep him out of the dog's food dish." Brendan is two years old.

Although she retired in 1988 because of illness, she has "bounced back" - and "retired" was never really in her vocabulary. "I missed the children and my friends on the staff too much to stay away!" she says. "I work as a substitute teacher all over town but primarily at Atwell, and also as a volunteer at various schools when the need arises. I also spend some time helping bright and ambitious students get admitted to college, and still serve on school-oriented committees. Last year, I sent out what felt like a million appeal letters to solicit donations for the renovation of the Greenwood School Playground."

She collected "several thousand dollars" and is ready to go for more when work on the playground begins.

Her town, family and students are her pride - and her joy. "I love Wakefield because of its strong sense of community - people really care about and help each other here," she says. "I am so proud when any of my former first graders - some now in their 40s meet me on the street, give me a hug and tell me how happy their first grade memories are and that they never forgot me. I'm glad to say so far I haven't forgotten any of them yet either."

"I hope I'm remembered as a teacher who tried her best to care for and educate the whole child and who relished every minute spent with them. The look on a child's face when they were working to understand and then it 'clicked' was always my best reward."

"I always cared deeply for every single child's personal happiness and would go to any lengths to see that they achieved their potential."

School Notes by Phyllis Nissen

The wheels at the schools go 'round and 'round

Re: re-organization

At the July 13th School Committee meeting, Stoneham Superintendent of Schools Dr. Ellen Bueschel is expected to ask to amend a reorganizational policy the committee adopted earlier this year under former superintendent, Dr. William Hoyt.

According to the "Stoneham Independent," Bueschel said the need to amend the policy came about after a review of the applications for the four department head positions now available. That same evening, according to the "Independent," Bueschel is expected to formally announce that Special Education Director Frank Gagliardi will become principal of the Colonial Park School for the next two years to replace Head Teacher-Principal Barbara Talanian who was filling in for Paula Sline, who has been out with a back injury, and must cut back to one school for at least a year.

Changes at South include the moving of a fourth grade class to Robin Hood next year and the elimination of South's fifth grade in two years.

Gagliardi will be compensated an additional $8,000 to $10,000 for his principal duties on top of his SPED salary. Talanian and South School Head Teacher Denise Arvidsen were compensated $7,300 a school year for their duties as principals and that figure, according to the "Independent," included the $2,000 stipend as head teacher.

Stoneham had recently advertised for the positions of fine arts director; director of social studies and occupational education; director of science, math and industrial technology; and assistant superintendent.

As it stands today, for one year only, Stoneham High Vice Principal James Campagna will step aside as occupational education director and assume administrative duties for the social studies department, the job he held before becoming vice principal. In that capacity, he will receive some assistance from Middle School Principal James Andreottola, also a former social studies department head. Program supervisors are now needed for occupational education, science and math - math director Cecil White will retire this fall.

appointed principal search committee which did the initial screening and voted on the finalists - and with information provided by the Administrative Council and residents who filled out evaluation forms during the public interview session.

And 'round

After two - that's TWO! - intensive searches for a middle school principal in Reading (where volunteer time does not seem to be money), the science department head - award-winning Science Olympiad team coach and Reading Summer School Director - who was serving as the interim assistant principal was appointed principal.

If you'd like to read about your favorite school, student or teacher in "School Notes," please send school newsletters and other relevant information to Phyllis Nissen, "School Notes," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

Watering whole

Reading residents have been subject to an odd-even watering schedule with a Sunday ban since a few months after the October 1992 gasoline spill on Route 93 near the Reading well fields. That ban is about to be - or may already have been - lifted as you read.

The Board of Selectmen lifted the Sunday ban late in June upon learning that overall compliance with the restrictions had been good. Sunday, according to the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle," had previously been used to refill the town's two water tanks. Customers will - or have already - received written notice from the town as to the exact details of the modifications.

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

Griffin Center Juried Exhibit

The Third Annual Juried Exhibition at The Arthur Griffin Center is set to open with a gala reception on July 14. Close to three hundred entries from around the country were judged by a panel of photography experts and the results will be announced at the opening reception.

The team of jurors for this year's competition were Barbara Hitchcock, Director of Corporate Cultural Affairs at Polaroid; Mack Lee owner of Lee Photographic Gallery of Winchester, and Dr. Eric Endlich of Watertown a nature and wildlife photographer teacher.

This past week was the long awaited jury day when the panel examined the many photographs, slides and transparencies sent in by amateur and professional photographers alike. The photographs and slides were judged in several categories including landscape, portrait, organic life, still life and architecture. There was also a category for inventive expression, action and social commentary.

The top ten from each category were then selected to be in the showcase exhibit which runs from July 14 through August 14 in the Main Gallery at The Arthur Griffin Center. The top three places in each category will receive awards as well as a special prize for the winner of the junior category and the much coveted Best in Show Award.

Arthur Griffin will be on hand to present the awards which won't be announced until 6 pm on July 14th. Many local photographers have been selected for the exhibit and some are in strong contention for Best in Show. Among those from Winchester are George Vaill, Mark Flannery, Al Falcione, Whitney Gay, Albert Cook, Cydney Ambrose and Caroline Krantz.

Among Those from Woburn are Stephen Daley, Daniel Cummings and Franco Cutietta. Arlington resident Frank Tadley is also in contention however the results have been sealed until the opening reception.

The current exhibit, "Images from World War Two" runs through July 2nd. Gallery hours are Thursday thru Sunday Noon til 4 pm.

Searching on

After conducting background checks on the three finalists for middle school assistant principal, Lynnfield Superintendent of Schools Dr. Richard Palermo and Middle School Principal Douglas Russell decided early in June to reopen the search for Lynnfield Middle School assistant principal.

Palermo met with the three finalists selected by the interview committee, conducted in-depth background and reference checks on the candidates, conferred with Russell, and decided to readvertise the position. Interviews will be conducted this summer.

Under the Education Reform Act of 1993, according to the "Lynnfield Villager," Russell can appoint the assistant principal with approval from the superintendent.

Little bits

Although North Reading Superintendent Dr. David Troughton made the final decision that candidate William Leccese would be the new principal of the E.E. Little School, Troughton worked with information provided by a specially

MOVIES

"First Knight", Short Takes

by Rochelle Flynn
"First Knight" starring Sean Connery, Richard Gere, Julia Ormond, Ben Cross. Directed by Jerry Zucker. Screenplay by William Nicholson. Produced by Zucker and Hunt Lowry. Rated PG-13.

Camelot, a golden beacon of democracy in the savagery of the Middle Ages, has been brought to the screen with its idealism intact and highly visible. Unfortunately, as gorgeous as this film may be, its beauty is only surface deep.

The formula for a flawless film is all there. The cast gives us mature and seasoned performances in place of the overly mannered presentations often associated with such visionary figures. The story is one of sentiment and adventure, and producer/director Jerry Zucker's production team designed breathtaking costumes, settings, and set decorations. Though enjoyable and unabashedly romantic, this flick just doesn't get under our skin the way it should.

Sean Connery is the wise and strong King Arthur. His presence is commanding and his performance very serious and completely devoid of the twinkling, sarcastic charm we often associate with him. He toned it down too much, though, as we needed to believe him capable of enough passion to entice his youthful fiancée.

The best actor on the screen is relative newcomer Julia Ormond as Arthur's intended.

You never doubt her regal countenance, as Ormond allows us to see the desires burning in her, and the self-possession by which she keeps them doused. All the more likable is that her Guinevere is as smart as she is tough, a lady very much in charge of her own destiny.

The object of Guinevere's desire is Lancelot, a travelling sword-for-hire played by Richard Gere. A loner with a scarred psyche and a troubled past, Gere plays him as a charismatic rogue. His performance may be sparkling, but it is too casual, too contemporary. On a few occasions you can't help but think that he wandered in from another set.

Lancelot, never one to commit to either a person or a place, finds himself entangled, body and soul, with Arthur's sincere goodness and the idealism of Camelot. He is also more than a little smitten by Lady Guinevere. Soon Lancelot is caught up in the war waged on Arthur by the errant knight Malagant, played by a lethal-looking Ben Cross.

Much can be said about the film's look, and all of it positive. Lush greens, deep royal blues, velvety blacks and burnished silvers are added to Celtic crosses, candlelight processions, and gleaming swords. The settings send strong messages, from the gleaming streets of Camelot to Malagant's home in a dank, inky cave. Even if no one said a word, the movie would be worth seeing just for the trappings. The one exception is a nighttime battle that was lit far too darkly. Not that any of the swordplay comes close to matching the violent ballets staged earlier this summer in "Rob Roy" or "Braveheart."

There is much to admire in the fact that this version of the Arthurian legend contains no Merlin. There is no sorcery; Arthur commits no fatal flaw. There are just three people caught up in a tragic love triangle that weakens their fight against an evil invader.

Though lacking an emotional depth that could have transformed a good movie into a great one, the worst that can be said about "First Knight" is that it is mildly disappointing. Still, romantics are sure to enjoy it, even if they never quite believe it.

Apollo 13 captures the dedication, romance, fear, and unabashed spirit of adventure that should accompany a story about the exploration of new frontiers. Technically, this is a masterpiece. Director Ron Howard's detailed scenes of the launch, NASA's control room, and even the weightlessness of the astronauts in their cramped quarters, are mind-boggling. When you consider that the subject matter involves swaggering astronauts and men who would ever show emotion, there is a lot of it up on the screen. Rated PG.

President Calvin Coolidge was known as "Silent Cal." He was indeed a man of few words. His announcement that he'd not seek another term was short and to the point saying, "I do not choose to run." He retired to his farm in Vermont. When the news that he had died was flashed across the country, a White House reporter asked, "how can you tell."

A police officer was dispatched to investigate a call that a man was lying down alongside of a large drain outlet. He made out this report, "Found man, dead, apparent cause, 'Sewerside.'"

There was no mistake how my Uncle John Shea stood politically. He told a man running for office, "I wouldn't vote for you if you were the Angel Gabriel!" The vote seeker exclaimed, "if I were the Angel Gabriel, you wouldn't be in my constituency."

Andrew Carnegie was asked, "Sir, what is the most important to be successful in business? Is it hard work, dedication or education?"

Mr. Carnegie smiled and asked, which is the most important leg of a, "Three Legged Stool?"

On an ocean cruise my Aunt Nora asked the captain, "Sir, do ships this size sink often?" The captain put his arm around Aunt Nora's shoulders to calm her down then said, "ma'am, ships this size sink only ONCE!"

On the first day of school, the first grade teacher told the class, "when you have to go to the bathroom raise either one finger or two fingers." Blackie Vega asked, "Gee teacher how is that going to help?"

In a spelling bee Johnny Ave's word was, Mississippi, "the River or the State?" Johnny asked, "What in the world is the difference," Miss Sullivan asked. "Oh!" Johnny replied, "the River is much longer."

In business school, Michael Ferrante was asked to describe or give an example of, Poor distribution. Michael said, "It's like a bald headed man with a luxurious beard and a handlebar moustache."

When my cousin Mario was getting married the clergyman said in a loud voice, "Does anyone know any reason why this marriage ceremony shouldn't take place?" When no one in church answered Mario pleaded with the clergyman, "please, do me a favor and try again!"
